

CLEO

Community Legal Education Ontario
Éducation juridique communautaire Ontario

Unsure how to resolve family separation disputes? There's a CLEO Guided Pathway for that CLEO's Family dispute resolution Guided Pathway helps you compare different ways of resolving family law disputes. Choosing the best process for your situation can help reduce the emotional impact of separation or divorce. If you have to go to court, the pathway also helps you find the right court and location.

The pathway asks you questions, gives you information based on your answers, and allows you to save information that's important to you in a personalized checklist.

Here is how it works: The pathway describes considerations or issues that often come up when people are separating, such as safety and communication. These considerations could affect whether a certain dispute resolution process is right for you. You can decide which of these considerations and processes you want to learn more about. At the end, you can download and save or print your checklist. The pathway is free to use.

Learn more and use the pathway now.

Visit www.stepstojustice.ca for step-by-step information on common legal problems.

Family dispute resolution Guided Pathway

CLEO's Guided Pathway to resolving family law disputes provides information on different processes to resolve conflict and agree on issues when your relationship ends. Choosing the best dispute resolution process for your situation can help reduce the emotional impact of separation or divorce on you and your children.

The pathway describes considerations or issues that often come up when people are separating or divorcing, such as safety and communication. These considerations could affect whether a certain dispute resolution process is right for you. You can decide which of these considerations and processes you want to learn more about. If you have to go to court, the pathway can help you find the right court and location.

The pathway asks you questions, gives you information based on your answers, and allows you to save information that's important to you in a personalized checklist. At the end of the pathway, you can download and save or print your checklist. The pathway is free to use.

Who is this Guided Pathway for?

This pathway is designed for couples—married or common-law—who are separating or divorcing in Ontario. But the information may be helpful to anyone who wants to learn more about dispute resolution processes.

Using the pathway

You can sign up to create an account or use the pathways as a guest. If you choose not to create an account, the system will time out after 4 hours. You must create an account if you want to save your work on the system, or use the other pathways without exiting the system and signing back in. If you have an account, you can save and exit the pathway at any time.

All of the information that you enter into the pathways is confidential. CLEO will not give your personal information to anyone unless you ask us to do this. Read more in the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy.

Need help?

If you need help using the Guided Pathways or have questions, contact support@cleo.on.ca.

Family Law Guided Pathways

- Family Law Guided Pathways
- Family dispute resolution options
- Separation with other issues
- Simple or joint divorce
- Filing your support agreement
- Answering a family law application
- Replying to an answer
- Case conference
- Settlement conference
- Making or responding to a motion
- Net family property forms
- Requesting a motion to change
- Responding to a motion to change
- Requesting a motion to change on consent
- Trial management conference
- Drafting an order
- Requesting a court fee waiver

CLEO's Guided Pathways

- About Guided Pathways
- Abuse and Family Violence
- Family Law
- Housing Law
- Immigration Law
- Nonprofit Bylaws
- Wills and Powers of Attorney
- Need help?

